A ROUND OF TALK.

J Pluvius.

When the grass is parched and withered
By a lengthy drought spell,
And the need of rain refreshing
Parks and meadows plainly tell,
It is then that we're rejoicing
As J. Pluve comes on the scene,
And gets busy with his sprinkler
Till the grass again is green.

When the fields where crops are growing
Have been blistered by the heat,
And 'tis feared that in the gardens
There'll be ruin that's complete,
It is then that rural dwellers
Smile and for good harvests plan
As J. Pluve gets into action
With his mighty sprinkling can,

There is certainly much pleasure
Making town and country gay,
When J. Pluve is respearing
After drought has long held sway.
But 'tis also just as certain
That if he too long remains
Old J. Pluve we'll be denouncing
Till he stops his tiresome rains.
—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph,

LEWIS—The recent decision of the Court of Appeals which practically declares invalid the issue of the Cumberland & Ohio railroad bonds in Green county is quite a legal victory for Hon. John W. Lewis of this place who is counsel for Green county in the case and who has pursued the contest through several years of the hardest kind of legal work The decision saves to Green county about $600,000 which is the amount of the debt and interest Mr. Lewis argued the case before the Court of Appeals several months ago and a decision has been looked for some time. The people of Green county have bitterly opposed the payment of the railroad tax which they have held to be unjust and the thing has hung over the county like a pall for several years destroying property values and preventing the development of any enterprise. The people are to be congratulated upon the decision, and it is hoped that the final end has been reached in the fight against the payment of an unfair burden.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE—The Washington County Teachers Institute will be held here during the week beginning July 6th. This is an annual event that is always interesting as well as profitable to teachers and all others interested in the cause of education and this year's institute promises to be an especially instructive one. Prof. W. L. Ramey of Carlise who conducted last years institute has been engaged again this year and an attractive program has been arranged.

STRENUOUS. — The local Board of Health has begun to use strenuous methods against the further spread of small-pox. The movement was a little late in beginning, but still it is a good thing that precautions are being taken even now that any further spread of the contageon may be checked. The health officers have encountered many obstacles too, that are enough to try their patience, especially in dealing with the colored population among whom the disease so far has been confined. A lot of these up-to-date colored inhabitants appear to have taken up the idea that it is a disgrace to be vaccinated and when called on by the health offices absolutely refused to submit to the operation although told plainly of the law which makes it compulsory for all persons to be vaccinated. It became necessary to put several rebellious spirits under arrest and when tried in the police court were given a fine for their obstinacy. The small pox that is going the rounds appears to have absolutely no terrors for the average negro, and they from all indications, would rather put themselves in the way of catching it than to take any precautions against doing so, which makes the matter a hard one to handle.

REDUCTION—The insurance companies have given Springfield a new rate of fire insurance which it is gratifying to relate represents a reduction of about 20 per cent over the previous rate. It will be remembered that some months ago or after the installation of the water works system in town when everybody was expecting a reduction that the insurance people pitched in and raised the rate all over the town—and in some localities putting it so high as to make it prohibitive. The present reduction will be welcome by the property holders although they feel that it is really nothing more than they are entitled to as the other increase in rates was altogether unjust.

NEW BRIDGE.—The citizens of this county living in the neighborhood of the village of Maud, as well as the people living across Beech Fork in Nelson are very much interested in the proposed building of the bridge across the river at that point. The bridge committees of the two counties met last week and received estimates from the representatives of a number of bridge companies relative to the cost of the structure. It is estimated that the bridge will cost between $6,000 and $7,000 which expense is to be equally divided between the two counties. Nelson county is heartily in favor of the project, and it is said that a special term of the Nelson Fiscal Court will be held soon to make the appropriation. There is no question but what the bridge will benefit a large number of citizens of both counties, as it will greatly increase the facilities for communication. A location has been selected several hundred yards from the present ford on the Bloomfield pike. This was done in order to save expense in building approaches to the bridge. The location will also be convenient to travel over the road from Woodlawn.

CAUTION

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists others that are even good for light colds, coughs, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and early days, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year Regular size 75 cents. At all druggists. C. J. Haydon

The Wheat Crop

What will the harvest be? is a question that is being asked this week. Farmers generally think it will be very light and a number of them are telling doleful tales about the damage done in the last few days by the rust. On the other side of this question is Squire Quince Johnson. He has been in a good many wheat fields and is very much encouraged and thinks many farmers will be surprised when they come to thresh He says he has taken the trouble to find out how much binder twine has been sold and figures up 50,000 pounds from Elizabethtown, Glendale, Nolin, Sonora and Hodgenville; these facts he has gathered from dealers. This, says Squire Johnson means if it is all used 400,000 bushels of wheat within a radius of 12 miles of Elizabethtown, which is more than an average crop.—E'Town News,

Lebanon Locals.

From The Falcon.

Lindsay Cleaver, the boy who fell from a tree in Court square a short time ago, fell from the walk in front of the Cleaver Hotel this morning and bent his arm and otherwise bruised himself.

Mr. B. Terhune has just finished putting in boilers and engine and otherwise improving his mill at Bradfordsville. The new equipments cost in the neighborhood of $2,500 and makes his mill complete and up to-date in every respect.

Invitations have been received here announcing the marriage of Mr. Joseph R. Barnes to Miss Jasper Wheeler, at Worthington, Ky., on June 24. The groom is a son of Mrs J. W. Barnes and a brother of Mrs. John W. Crume, and was reared in this city where he has a large circle of friends to wish him much future happiness.

The Lebanon Base Ball Club has just signed Mr. Burry as pitcher and are now hopeful of many victories during the season. The new pitcher was formerly a pitcher in the Southern League, where he won many games and made a national reputation. He is now employed as head mechanic in the machine shops of Mr. Charles Ferrt. With this addition and the interest the boys of the team are taking the people may hope to see some good games of ball this season.

The county's new traction engine arrived yesterday. It was rigged up for business at the depot in the afternoon and hitched on to the rock crusher and carried it to the quarry on the Bradfordsville pike beyond the home of Mr. A J. Gruney, where its first work will be done at once. Quite a large number of people gathered to see it start off and the trip through the city was watched with interest by many citizens and followed by a fair sized procession, This new machinery is of the latest improvement and if properly managed will be of great value to the county.

Mr Wm Clifton Penick, aged 34 years, died at his home in Greensburg, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock He had been in bad health for some time and his death was not unexpected by his family and friends Deceased was a son of Mr B. W. Penick, cashier of the Deposit Bank, of Greensburg, and was reared in that town. He was married to a Miss Howell, who, with one child, a boy seven years old survives him. For the past fifteen years he was railway mail clerk on the L & O. branch between Lebanon and Greensburg, and on account of this position he spent a portion of each day in the city here he made fun reds of friends

Demand Good Roads.

It is doubtless true, as an exchange remarks, that the greatest blessing that comes with the Free Rural Mail Delivery system is the improvements that are consequently made in the public roads of the country. The policy of the government to establish free routes only where there are good roads has forced communities generally to look to the improvement of roads in order to secure the free routes. While the free mail routes are of great benefit and should be sought after, the improvement in the roads required is a benefit that can hardly be estimated. The statement has been made that it is impossible for any community to invest money more wisely than in road improvement, and it is true. The fact that a good road runs along in front of a farm makes the farm more desirable in every way- makes it more valuable as a home and as a financial investment, for is not happiness to be paid for with a long, price to have to pull through a foot of mud to go anywhere and there is certainly no profit in hauling wheat, corn, etc., to market through a quagmire.

Whether the free mail system has caused it or not, the demand in Kentucky today is for better country roads, and the county that fails to acquire them is going to be counted out early in the game. We must have them, even if they do cost a little money to get them.—Larue Co. Herald.

Lesson For Dogs.

Several well-known Boyle county citizens are owners of fine dogs which recently acquired the habit of sucking eggs. These canines were rapidly sucking their heads off. Mr. W. L. Caldwell studied the question from a scientific standpoint and reached the conclusion that by inserting a hog ring in the dog's nose would break him of the naughty ways. He tried it on his dog and the result was thoroughly satisfactory. Mr. Caldwell can place a basket of eggs before his dog now and he will not touch them. Mr. H od Worthington tried the same plan with equally as good results, as a so did Mr. Richard Gentry and a number of othe prominent farmers. It is necessary to insert he ring sideways in the dog's nos —exactly opposite from the hog.—Danville Advocate

Don't Want It.

The World publishes a dispatch from Princeton, N. J., quoting former President Cleveland as saying:

"It is perfectly absurd to suppose for an instant that I have any desire to re enter public life. Nor have I remotely entertained the thought since I left Washington, more than six years ago. The matter is as far from my thoughts as it was in 1896, when, all must admit, it was not within my hearing or sight. I have no higher aspiration than to pass my days in peace with my family around me and to take no part in politics which any private citizen cannot take with the utmost propriety.

"I have never spoken to anybody on the subject of a fourth candidacy. I have never written to a single political friend one way or the other, nor have I been written to or spoken to by them. There is not a political leader of any prominence endeavoring to advance any movement to nominate me in any State, so far as I have been advised, nor do I anticipate any such effort will be made by any leader, prominent or obscure, in any locality in the country.

"I have on several occasions within a year undertaken to perform the labor which usually falls to the private in the ranks, but there has not lurked within me the hope of any reward save the consciousness of having made an effort to assist in bringing about salutary conditions in the party."

Worst Of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel it at every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S H. Newson, Decatur, Ala., "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electaic Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by C. J. Haydon druggist

Gives Up Journalism.

Mr. Emmett G. Logan, for many years the brilliant editor of the Louisville Times has severed his connection with that paper and settled upon a magnificent farm in Warren county, on the banks of Barren river about five miles from Bowling Green. His ambition has long been to own a fine Kentucky farm, and in the purchase he made he certainly secured it. He signalized his retirement from journalism and entry as an agriculturist by giving a big barbecue and fish fry Monday to a number of his old associates in newspaper work and invited guests, including Gen J. Franklin Bell.

One of the pleasant features of the occasion was the presentation to Mr. Logan of a $500 watch, the gift of the Courier-Journal and Times, which he had served so ably and faithfully for the past quarter of a century. Hon. Henry Watterson made the presentation speech.

"I have been troubled for some time with indigestion and sour stomach," says Mrs. Sarah W. Cuffis, of Lee, Mass., "and have been taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets which have helped me very much so that now I can eat many things that before I could not." If you have any trouble with your stomach why not take these Tablets and get well? For sale by Haydon's drugstore

Narrow Escape.

Mr. Charles F Vanarsdall, who lives on a farm near this city, met with a narrow escape one day last week. After hitching up his team, he attempted to drive out of the lot, but instead of going forward as he anticipated, the horses commenced backing until they backed the wagon into the river. In the tumult Mr. Vanarsdall was thrown from the wagon and unfortunately fell underneath one of the horses, which also fell, burying Mr. Vanarsdall in five feet of water, with a horse entangled in his harness upon him. Fortunately a hired hand and his son-in-law, Mr. Thomas Hawkins, came to his rescue in time to save him from meeting a horrible death from drowning. The horse which fell upon Mr. Vanarsdall died from drowning while the other horse managed to break loose and swam the river, pulling the wagon behind him. Mr. Hawkins swam the river and cut the horse loose from the wagon This is the third narrow escape Mr. Vanarsdall had from drowning.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Prisoner Escapes.

Milton Taylor, a prisoner in the county bastile, made his escape from durance vile at a late hour Sunday evening and at this writing is still at large. When Jailer Roby went to lock the prisoners in their cells Sunday evening he failed to secure the outside door of the jail. Taylor, who was on the second floor, observed this, and while Mr. Roby was locking the cells of the other prisoners at the far end of the corridor, Taylor made a dash for liberty and reached the outside world before anyone could interfere. He ran south down the alley and notwithstanding Mr. Roby fired several shots at him, he got away safely.

Taylor with his brother, Preston Taylor, has been in jail since last March, charged with housebreaking, horsestealing, etc., committed in the Chaplin neighborhood Preston Taylor is still in jail.

Jailer Roby has offered a reward of $25 for the apprehension of the fugitive and his recapture is but a matter of a short time. —Nelson Standard.

Danville To Have Trots.

It is with both pride and pleasure that the News states that a trotting association has been organized by the breeders in this county. The name of the concern is "The Central Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association." It has been incorporated and has $1,500 capital stock, which has all been taken up.

It is the intention of the incorporators to arouse more interest in the trotting horse and they have dicided upon the best plan in existence to do whereby that interest will be raised.

The Association will hold from two to three meetings yearly, and the first meeting this year will be held the last part of July, when it is expected that horse men from adjoining counties will come here with their horses to compete for the purses that will be hung up by the Association.—News.

Fatally Injured.

Mr. James Melbourne, of the Green's Chapel neighborhood, met death in a singular manner.

All the morning of Tuesday of last week he and his fourteen year-old son had been engaged in rolling a large field. At the noon hour while unhitching the team of two horses from the roller, the boy let the tongue of the implement fall in such a manner that it struck one of the horses, a large grey animal. Mr. Melbourne was standing in the rear of the horse and when it was struck the animal kicked backward with both feet, striking Mr. Melbourne with great force in the stomach, inflicting injuries from which he died Thursday after great suffering. —Ky. Standard.

A Mad Cow On The War Path.

Friday morning a cow belonging to Mr, Ben Ransdall on Cane Run Avenue, became sick and after doctoring her with all the means at his command, he sent for Mr. Randal Litsey to examine her. Mr. Litsey said she had either lost or swallowed her cud and suggested that he feed her a goodly supply of fat meat. The cow ate it ravenously, but did not seem to improve and shortly she began to tear up and down the lot, foaming at the mouth and viciously attacking everything that came near. Mr Burton, plowing in a neighboring lot, had to desist because the maddened animal tore at the fence so fiercely that she would have demolished it in a few moments had he persisted in remaining in her sight. It was soon apparent that she had gone mad from suffering and her owner determined to kill her. She was so vicious and fought so fiercely that it took twenty men to corner her and accomplish it. In the fight Mr. Enoch Burton was knocked down by the infuriated animal and considerably bruised, and would most likely have been killed had not the cow been dehorned. — Harrodsburg Herald.

One Day's Killing.

Imagine a procession of ten thousand cattle marching two by two, in a line fifteen miles long; let twenty thousand sheep follow them, bleating along twelve miles of road; after them drive sixteen miles of hogs, twenty-seven thousand strong; then let thirty thousand fowls bring up the rear, clucking and quacking and gobbling over a space of six miles and in this whole caravan, stretching for nearly fifty miles and requiring two days to pass a given point, you will see the animals devoted to death in the packing house of one company at Chicago in a single day.—Ex.

The Frankfort Journal says: "Pressure is being brought to bear on the Hon. John W. Lewis of Springfield, to stand for Circuit Judge in the Eleventh district, composed of Green, Taylor Marion and Washington counties There is, however, another movement on foot in the Fourth Congressional district, formerly represented by Mr. Lewis, to have him nominated by the Republican party for Attorney General." We don't know that Mr. Lewis has been advised of either one of these movements but one thing is certain and that is that the Republicans might loot the State over and fail to find an abler or more deserving standard bearer for either position.

Brother Ward of the Green county Record is evidently an editor of few words and believes in saving both trouble and space in giving the news. Last week the Court of Appeals decided the celebrated C. & O. bond case which has been a drawback to that county for years. The decision means a saving to Green county of over $600,000. Here is what the Record has to say about it. "The Court of Appeals has reversed the Green county railroad bond case"

THE SINGING BULLET.

If You Hear It While You May Be Sure It Won't Hit You.

"Don't be afraid of a bullet that you've heard whistle," said an old soldier. "If it sings in your ear rest assured that it will never harm you. It is a fact, as any old soldier will tell you, that you never hear the bullet which hits you. It is a problem of 'windage,' as the boys in the army called it. In other words, the bullet which you hear sing has already sped past you and the bullet which hits you has hissed in the ear of some other fellow in passing before it got to you. It is a simple proposition, after all. The singing of the bullet is the atmospheric vibration which is created and the resistance which the air offers to the progress of the bullet. This cannot be detected by the ear until the bullet has crossed a parallel line with the ear. It may sail over your head or whiz close to the ground, but if it passes you at all the ear will catch the sound of its flight. To the soldier of many battles the voice of the bullet is music. He knows that he need have no dread of the bullet that sings in his ears. It is the bullet that he does not hear that must be feared, and it is this bullet which always brings harm to him. No soldier ever heard the bullet which inflicted a wound on him."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ventilation In the Hat.

"Some customers have nonsensical notions about the proper way to ventilate a hat," said a fashionable hatter. "In fact, they are no whimsical about it that we make the hats without a ventilator and try to suit the wishes of the customer after he has handed his money to the salesman. Many customers will not have a hat ventilated at all. Well, they miss a great deal of comfort and take long chances for holding cold in the head. The English style, and the only one that some buyers will adopt, is a ring of perforated holes in the crown of the hat. In my opinion it is just as well to have no ventilator at all as to put it there. The best way is to have two holes, one on each side of the hat, just above the band. Then you get good circulation all the time. There are ways of punching the holes artistically so that they do not detract from the appearance of the hat. But you would be surprised at the number of men who will not have them, some because it is not fashionable and others because they think the hat will not wear so well."—New York Times.

Hypocrisy.

"Can you sincerely say that you never descended to hypocrisy?" asked the man of severe standards.

"Well," answered Mr. Biggins, "I must confess that I once sat and listened to my daughter's commencement essay and pretended to be as much entertained as if I were at a baseball game."—Washington Star.

Kept Him Waiting.

Haydon, the English artist, in his diary, relates how he once went late to a sitting given him by the Duke of Wellington and the old duke tore his white hair and cried that he had "sat to 400 confounded painters and sculptors, and none of them was ever punctual."

His Last Hope Realized.

(From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.)

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his travels he was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Haydon's drugstore

PLATONIC FRIENDSHIP.

Something Which, In Its Modern Sense, Plato Never Understood.

The name "platonic" is not very accurately used when it is employed to discuss the friendship of a man and a woman into which there enters no trace of amatory sentiment. Plato in various treatises, especially the "Timæus" and the "Symposium," speaks indeed of a love which is free from sensuousness, being the love of soul for soul, but Plato, whose spirit was tinged with asceticism, was not treating of woman at all, and in general what he says upon this theme refers wholly to the affection of man for man, of the binding force of high character and honor. He goes so far as to say that the true lover is to be compared with the true philosopher, rising from the contemplation of the many who are beautiful to the contemplation and love of the beauty that is abstract and absolute. In fact, when he discusses "beauty" he uses the word almost as the equivalent of "goodness"—that is, in an ethical rather than in a physical sense. Therefore "platonic friendship" in its modern conventional meaning is something which never entered Plato's mind.—"Platonic Friendship," in Cosmopolitan.

Making an Impression.

A Virginia senator was talking of negroes and their love of making impressions. He called attention to the well known fact that negroes, as a rule, when paying for a ten cent purchase, will deliberately fumble through a large number of bills though they have the ten cent piece in another pocket.

The senator then told the story of a negro who saw an advertisement which read, "Trunk exactly like cut, $6.75." On the trunk appeared in large figures "$6.75." As the negro contemplated a trip through the north he forwarded the money for a trunk. When the trunk arrived the colored man was very indignant, The figures were missing from its side. He returned the trunk, demanding his money back because of the important omission.

The trunk firm saw the point, admitted its error and by way of making amends agreed to paint an additional figure. When the trunk arrived the second time the negro was satisfied. On its side, in glaring colors, were the figures "$16.75."

The Puritan Fathers and Smoking.

The Puritan fathers were greatly addicted to smoking—indeed, the practice became so common that even the straitlaced observers of times and seasons actually smoked in church. This custom soon caused very considerable annoyance, as the religious exercises were greatly disturbed by the clinking of flints and steels to light their pipes and the clouds of smoke in church. Hence in the year 1630 the colony passed this law: "It is enacted that any person or persons that shall be found smoking of tobacco on the Lord's day, going to or coming from the meetings, within two miles of meeting house, shall pay 12 pence for every such default." Under this law several persons were actually fined, but the punishment failed to secure the carrying out of the arbitrary second portion of the enactment.

The First Porterhouse Steak.

The first porterhouse steak was so named in New York city, in the famous old tavern of Martin Morrison, at 327 Pearl street. This was a favorite resort of seafaring men. A steak being called for by an old pilot one night, Morrison said that he had no steaks, but would cut and broil for him a thick slice from the sirloin which had just been prepared for roasting the next day. Morrison's place was known as the Porter House in the neighborhood, and its frequenters soon got to talking about the Porter House steaks. Morrison finally told Gibbons, his butcher in the Fly market, to cut up sirloins for him thereafter.

The Tail of a Wolf.

The wolf carries its tail hanging down because in that position it is less conspicuous and better eludes detection. A family of wolves playing together undisturbed occasionally carry their tails curled upward. By degrees the tail acquires naturally the upright position as a result of coincident evolution of the mind of the wolf by domestication and of the slow adaptation of the appendage as an organ of expression. The cessation of natural selection in the domestic dog would give the tail greater freedom of motion without detriment to life, and artificial selection modifies it into various shapes.

The deceased had been a resident of this county all of her life and was the widow of Mr. Uriah Litsey, a prominent citizen of the county, whose death occurred some twenty years ago. Her only surviving child is County Judge B. L. Litsey. Mrs. Litsey's maiden name was Lewis, and she was closely related to the Hayes family, her mother being of that name. The deceased was a woman of strong character and of many excellent qualities of heart and mind. She had been a member of the Pleasant Grove church for many years, and her life was always that of a consistent christian

In Memoriam

At a meeting of the Pevil-Palmer Post, No. 215 held in Springfield, on June 22d, the following resolutions were passed:

Since the last meeting of this Post, William Edwards a true and faithful comrade has been summoned for our midst and has answered roll call upon the other side of the dark river. He was born and reared in Washington county, Ky., and in September 1861 he enlisted in company C., 10th Ky. U. S. Volunteers and followed the fortunes of that regiment during the whole time of its service being mustered out with it in December 1864. His kind and genial nature made him a general favorite with his comrades and his firm and unyielding devotion to duty, his unfaltering courage and his prompt compliance with all the rules and regulations of the service won for him the respect and confidence of officers and men. He was a man of great firmness and decision of character, ready at all times to defend at all hazard what he believed to be right and yet courteous and considerate of the feelings of those who differed from him He entered the army at the early age of 21 from a sense of duty and his love for the flag for which he had fought in his youth grew and strengthened as the years passed by. He was among the first to tender himself a member when this post was organized and was one of its most devoted members Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Comrade William Edwards we have lost a brave and gallant soldier, a noble comrade and a faithful friend; and the community a just and upright citizen and one who was ever true to his country and obedient to its laws.

Resolved, That our hearts go out in deep and tender sympathy to the family who mourn his death and we commend them to Him who can soothe all earthly sorrows and [illegible] to rewnite them with their loved one in another and better world.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Post, a copy sent to the family of our deceased comrade and a copy sent to the NEWS-LEADER with request to publish same.

Washington Letter

The Postmaster General has finally been forced by the pressure of public opinion to give to the press the Bristow reply to the Tulloch charges, and the inspectors reports which Bristow submitted to Payne should have been ample to convince Payne that the Tulloch charges were not "out air." The total matter submitted to the press by Mr. Payne aggregates 30,000,000 words. There is every evidence therein of all that Tulloch charged that Perry Heath, as First Assistant Postmaster General, used the Washington Post office without scruple, to appoint personal and political friends to office regardless of the necessity of the re employment, etc. In one instance Inspector Little reports finding eight clear women drawing salaries aggregating $3,800 a year, but who performed no services. The inspector, taking as a basis the expense for these services in the Postoffice Department, points out that at the utmost three women drawing an aggregate sum of $960 per year could have done all that was required, thus saving the Government $2840: In what purports to be an explanation of Little's charges ex Postmaster General Smith issued a statement in which he says: "It was the duty of the Postmaster to find work for these women who were regularly appointed." Of course, it is well known that Heath appointed these women to oblige friends and that he knew there was no work for them. this being clearly shown by facts and by Civil Service Commissioner Proctor's report.

In the case of E. O. Fowler the inspector states that he had been an invalid for many months and unable to perform any satisfactory service. He says: "A place was found or made for him as assistant for the time-keeper in F. D. division (Machen's division). The time keeper draws $1,000 per year. The assistant draws $1,700." In view of the wholesale prostitution of the government service by the highest officials, the petty stealings of their subordinates pale into insignificance.

Postmaster General Payne is still doing everything in his power to suppress and hamper the investigation. The President does not wish to part with Payne although the pressure of public opinion may become as strong as it did in the case of Alger and force Payne's resignation. But in no event will the President permit any suppression of the facts or the retention of unworthy officials. Mr. J. S. Clarkson, the collector of the port of New York, has just been in Washington trying to suppress the scandal and incidentally to get Bristow's official scalp.

Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner General of Immigration, has just returned to Washington after a long tour of inspection of western immigration stations including that in Hawaii Mr. Sargent reports a great dissatisfaction on the part of the Hawaiian planters because they are no longer allowed to import Chinese labor. They say this is the only class of labor content to work in the cane fields for 50 cents a day, house and fuel. The Japanese do well for a while, but soon learn trades and the native Hawaiians are complaining because of Japane e competition in the better grades of labor. The Commissioner reports that he found everything in good condition at the stations and that the laws were being enforced everywhere but in the Puget Sound country, but he believes the difficulties there will be remedied now that he has called attention to the deficiencies.

Notwithstanding the great amount of traveling he has been doing lately the President has been away from Washington twice within the past week. On Monday he went over to Baltimore, but 45 minutes ride from Washington, where he attended the Saengerfest. As was to have been expected his reception was extremely enthusiastic and he made a felicitous speech praising the character and work of the Germans who have come to the United States to make it their home. On Tuesday, the President went to Charlottesville, Virginia, to attend the commencement exercises of the University of Virginia. These are the only trips the President will make before his departure for Oyster Bay, for which point he leaves on June 27. There he expects to secure two months absolute rest and will issue his usual request that no one call upon him on other than imperative business. The Roosevelt children have already left for Oyster Bay and the President and Mrs Roosevelt are the sole occupants of the White House, Miss Roosevelt having gone to Massachusetts to visit her grandmother.

Child Study.

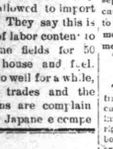
The study of child psychology is attracting ever increasing interest and enthusiasm. Problems in crime and insanity are becoming solvable. The right of the child to proper treatment, bodily and mental, is making a stronger appeal. It is coming to be better known just what treatment fosters a balanced development and just what physical conditions preclude the possibility of such development. Parents will know that the nervous, fractious child needs the services of a brain expert, possibly afterward of a skilled surgeon. It will be understood that stubbornness can be cured if rationally dealt with or made a nucleus of crime if murderously mismanaged. Many ever reluctant parent aid in this beneficent work by studying his own child fairly and impartially and collecting materials from his neighborhood that will give the student a broader outlook. Fair, honest statements from varying environments are of value. Read, study along this line and see what wonderful avenues of thought open up.—Health.

Curing an Otter Skin.

A fall grown sea otter is from four to five feet long and perhaps a foot or more wide. When a hunter secures one he loosens the hide from the nose and head, and, without cutting it lengthwise at all, he pulls the skin down over the body, the hide being so elastic that this is not a difficult job. It is then stretched over a smooth board six and a half feet long, nine inches wide at one end and ten at the other end. Each end of this board is tapered to a point. Another board exactly the same size is then inserted, and the skin is stretched a foot or eighteen inches longer than its original length.

A third board half the length of the other is wedged in and the skin tightly tacked at the ends to hold it in place. If any flesh adheres to the skin it is then cut off, and the hide is cured and dried in this condition. In a few days it is taken off the boards and turned fur side out, when it is ready for market.

IN OLD AGE the question of health becomes mainly a question of nutrition. If the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are kept in a healthful condition there will be a well-nourished body and little liability to disorders of the liver, bowels or skin, or other disorders as may result from imperfect nutrition and lack of exercise.

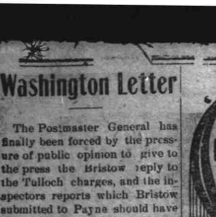


Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and also diseases of the organs which are caused by the disordered condition of the stomach. By enabling the perfect nutrition of the body it increases the vital power and promotes a vigorous old age.

"I was a sufferer from chronic diarrhea for five years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Aaron, of Bella, Phelps Co., Mo. "I tried different remedies, and doctored with different doctors, but found no help. My trouble would return in bad air ever, commencing in July, ago, and by your advice I commenced using Dr. Pierce's remedies. I took three vials of the 'Pellets' and some of the 'Extract of Sarsaparilla' and you advised. I have not had any return of my trouble since using your medicines. I am a well woman now of years old, and owing to your advice and thanks to Almighty God for restoring me to health through your hands."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the best laxative for all purposes. They cure constipation and biliousness.



Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Thedford's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Thedford's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Norcen, Ark., May 25, 1901.
I cannot recommend Thedford's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me regular.

The Gentleman's Plan.

On one occasion a famous clergyman witnessed the theft of a stableman in cracking a recalcitrant colt into his stall and soothing him until completely reconciled. Having expressed his congratulations, he remarked with a touch of melancholy:

"I wish I could get the workingmen of my parish into church as easily as you get your young horses into their stalls, Thomas."

"Well, sir," said Thomas, "I should think it could be done, providin' you understands the nature of 'em an' gives your mind to it."

The cleric smiled. Thomas might manage horses, but workingmen—that was a different matter.

"Perhaps you'll think it over and let me know your method," he finally suggested.

Thomas promised and, being appealed to a few days later, was ready with his "method."

"And you think you have hit on a plan to get workingmen to church, Thomas?"

"I think so, sir."

"And how would you?"

"Blimdfold 'em an' back 'em in," said Thomas.—Kansas City Independent.

Edam Cheeses In History.

The famous Edam cheeses which grace the table of every well kept hotel and restaurant in the country," said a prominent grocery man, "are often a subject of inquiry as to what they are and where they come. Their round shape, with that peculiar reddish purple tinge, is a marked contrast with all other cheese productions of the world. There is nothing new fashioned about them, for if colonial tradition is true Mynheer Peter Heyis of Edam, Holland, who brought a lot in the hold of his Dutch ship built to the Delaware river, so tickled the fancy of the Indians with these odd looking articles that he bought a large tract of land, afterward named the Valley of the Swans, from the redskins with a barrel of his Edam cheeses. After the cheese had been devoured the gentle aborigines repented themselves of their rash speculation and a month later massacred the entire Dutch colony."

Forrest's Great Power.

An effeminate young man, an intense admirer of Forrest, enlisted among the supers so as to be nearer his idol. At the end of Forrest's most effective speech, then on, the new actor was so overcome that he fainted. The incident so pleased the "old man" that he called him to his dressing room, where, after a few remarks, he presented him with a dollar as a memento of the occasion. On rejoining his fellow supers, fire in number, the happy recipient spoke of his good fortune, dilating upon the cause thereof. At the next performance Forrest kept his eye on him to see if he could again so overcome him as to cause him to faint. When he reached the scene and climax his astonishment can be imagined when six of the supers fell over in a dead faint.

Carpenter, express messenger, railroad man, lawyer, governor, he has steadily risen year after year. He favors "any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording a shelter to monopoly."

Short of Breath, Faint and Languid.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine Cured Me.

"I'th a horrible years since I was cured of heart trouble by your Heart Cure and Nervine, and I am just as well as I ever was in that organ today. For several years I had been suffering with my heart. Breathing had become short and difficult at times, short, sharp pains about the heart, sometimes accompanied with fluttering would come on me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or mental worry would almost unnerve me. I felt that the trouble was growing worse all the time, and after trying many remedies prescribed by physicians without obtaining relief, I was induced to give your remedies a trial. I was relieved the second day, and after taking three or four bottles all symptoms left me, and my heart is now showed signs of returning."—Rev. C. W. W. Kincaid, Chincoteague, Va.

There are many symptoms of heart disease, which so closely resemble those of more common nervous disorders as to frequently mislead the attending physician. Often in cases of nervous trouble fat stomach, kidneys, liver or lungs become affected. Again the symptoms may be those of weak heart nerves, as tired feeling, sleeplessness, timidity, the patient is easily excitable and apt to worry without cause. If you have the least suspicion that your heart is weak study your symptoms and begin the use of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, the great heart and blood tonic, without a day's delay.

The English Pheasant.

It is claimed that the pheasant of the English preserves can trace its pedigree directly to the brilliant bird of the same species in Japan. About half a century ago a few live pheasants were brought from Japan and crossed with the common species. The result of this was, it is said, that a new race of birds was introduced, and the beautiful pheasant, with its iridescent plumage, was produced and naturalized as an English bird.

The American Father.

Asenm—Another baby, and a girl this time, eh? How does it make you feel to have a daughter?

Popley—Great! One of the first things you think about it is how a foreign nobleman will come courting her some day and how you'll turn him down good and proper.

Little Faults in Social Life.

A fault in the young is to form some feverish admiration for one or two particular friends, often of a so called superior social standing. These are referred to constantly. They are held up as patterns, oracles and patrons. In private circles and public places their names are lonily mentioned in the hope and desire of impressing bystanders. At banars, in the lobbies of theaters, at railway stations, in railway carriages and, indeed, wherever the company may be described as mixed this distressing form of what is known as brag is very much in evidence. The shouting of nicknames and Christian names at moments when in ordinary intercourse one would not be addressing anybody is also done in order to advertise some small degrees of intimacy with the well known.—Success.

Emerson the American.

In Emerson as an American, as a patriot, we of the new world have an inheritance peculiarly our own which will grow richer with the spending, for the spending of such an inheritance means that we ourselves be spent for the republic. For as we may go beyond our present failures, beyond what Morley calls this our corrupt period, for as we may go on the line of our noble national accomplishments and amid all our discouragements we must not forget these nobler accomplishments, for as we may travel up the pathway of our true ideals, still before us and ever higher on that pathway will be seen the beckoning figure, will be heard the urging and inspiring voice, of Emerson.—Century.

Blood Corpuscles.

The war between the white corpuscles of the blood and the microbes of disease was first described by the Russian pathologist, Metchnikoff. While devoting himself to the study of inflammations he in each case noted the presence of white cells in the blood currents in abnormal numbers. Inside these white cells he invariably found the specific microbe of the disease under consideration. It seemed that the big corpuscles were devouring the poisonous microbes. Sometimes the number taken up by a corpuscle was too great, and it died as a result. If this overeating of the white corpuscles by the [illegible] the [illegible] died.

LORD DALE AND THE CAPTAIN'S MAN

By CYRUS DERICKSON

Copyright, 1901, by T. C. McClure

I was Captain Chardon's man—not his valet. I was a private soldier in his company for three years on the Afghan frontier, and after we had both been wounded in the same skirmish and I had been my luck to help him off the field he asked for my detail as his man. I may have performed all the duties of a valet, but the term was never applied to me. As his "man" I had a record behind me and a standing among the rank and file.

Captain Chardon came into possession of a large property and threw up his commission. My term of enlistment had expired, and I returned to England with him.

The captain and I understood each other very well. He used to boast, so I was told, that I was one out of a thousand, and I was free to declare that no officer's man ever had a better master. When he established himself in rooms in Piccadilly I still charged myself with his wardrobe and he trusted me to the fullest extent. There was no wild rioting. Captain Chardon was a good fellow, and plenty of good fellows came to see him and drank and played, but there was nothing to scandalize.

In time I got to know all his callers in a way. There were three or four blue bloods among them—real tiptoppers who were going the pace—and Lord Dale led this crowd. When sober he was a snob and a cad. When in his cups he was a thorough vulgarian and would as soon carouse with a criminal as to drink with a gentleman. He had been introduced by a good friend of my master's, and, being a lord, he was allowed many liberties over a commoner, but I believe that Captain Chardon would have preferred his room to his company after his first visit. I took a strange dislike to him at first sight, but of course that didn't count.

That Lord Dale had made dunces and drakes of his inheritance and gone to the money lenders was counted to his credit no one knew just how hard up he was. On his very first visit to my master two tradesmen would have waylaid him at the door as he left and I was sent them away on a false scent. His morning mail consisted mostly of duns and threats, and writs arrived were after him during the rest of the day. Those things did not affect his general reputation, however. As a blue blood he had any day many things that would bring disgrace upon a tradesman.

Of all the callers at our rooms no one except Lord Dale would insist upon entering when informed that the captain was out. Sometimes he would find the captain at home, but engaged with his letters or accounts or with some old friend of bygone days, and other times he would wait for him for half an hour or more and then knock things about and go away cursing. I never could learn that any of his calls had any pressing object in view. It was rather his obstinate, bulldozing way.

As the captain's man I was responsible for all personal property, and I may tell you that the rooms contained many portable objects of value. There were rare old vases, gems and small valuable cameos, [illegible] gems from India, ivory statuettes from Japan. I had a written list of them, and once a week I went through the rooms and checked off.

One Friday Lord Dale made a call when the captain had gone into the country for Sunday. My word that he was not at home simply resulted in an insolent laugh, and the caller passed on to the rooms. He waited for an hour and then kicked over a chair, upset a table and clattered down stairs. Next day was my day for checking off, and I had scarcely begun when I discovered that a valuable Indian cameo was missing. I knew that it came to have been in its cabinet Friday morning. No one but Lord Dale had called in the twenty-four hours. The captain returned Saturday afternoon, and I reported the loss. He looked at me for a moment with a serious face and then replied:

"Stevens, you can't suspect Lord Dale of taking that cameo away?"

"I don't say that I do, sir, but it has disappeared from the cabinet. If he didn't"—

"Then I took it down the country as a present to my cousin. You must be careful, my man, or you will get into trouble."

I knew that my master lied. I knew he lied to save Lord Dale's reputation. That cameo was in the cabinet after he left for the country. It was not for me to assert or argue, however. I said not a word more, but accepted the rebuke in humble spirit and went about my duties. After that I checked off the property every day, taking the hour between 9 and 10 in the forenoon, when I was at leisure.

It wasn't many days before the lord was back again, and master fortunately was out. From a hiding place prepared in advance I saw the caller pocket three ivory figures and a jewel handled dagger as coolly as if he had been thieving all his life. More than that, I followed him when he left the house and was close at his heels when he entered the shop of a dealer to dispose of his loot. It was next morning before I had opportunity to speak to the captain. Then I said:

"I beg pardon, sir, but may I ask if Lord Dale is off in his head?"

"Why do you ask?" he queried in reply.

"Because the property he carried away from these rooms yesterday can be found at —— Regent street. Perhaps the other missing article is there too."

The captain made no reply whatever. But an hour later he strolled down to the dealer's, found all his missing property and brought it back. When he came home, he put the bundle into my hands and said:

"Yes, Stevens, Lord Dale is slightly off, but the matter is confidential and must go no further. You had best lock the cabinets after this and put the keys in your pocket."

That was all—all until Lord Dale, with the mania of plunder in his soul, called again. Master had slipped out only a quarter of an hour before. My lord had not been in the sitting room five minutes when he came out to me with a curious look on his face and said:

"Stevens, I see that your master has been buying several new curiosities of late?"

"Yes, sir," I replied. "Yes, sir, he picked up several new things at —— Regent street the other day, and that the charwoman might not be tempted I have locked them up."

"H'm! H'm! I think not, Stevens, think I will be going."

He went, and that was his last call at the rooms. I do not know what explanations my master made, if any, but I know I made none. How could I, a gentleman's "man," accuse a blue blood of thievery?

The Impertinent Waiter.

He entered a drug emporium and said to the clerk in a vigorous tone, without a trace of shame or diffidence:

"Give me a bottle of the best hair restorer you've got."

The clerk looked at him with some astonishment.

Interpreting his look, the customer said:

"Yes, it's for myself, and I'm not ashamed to say so either. For years I've laughed at the references made to my hairless poll; I considered it a good joke, because I'm still young, and thousands of old men than I still have all their hair and I don't regard absence of it as a sign of age.

"But I've changes my mind now. I want hair on top of my head. The last straw came today when I went into a restaurant where I've been in the habit of dining with a friend. This friend is only a few years younger than me, but he has a thick shock of hair, which gives him a rather youthful appearance.

"Well, when the waiter came to take my order he noted, as usual, and then remarked, rather impertinently, I thought:

Hunting a Treacherous Soil.

Snipe shooting on an Irish bog is an excellent test of a gunner's skill and enthusiasm. An experienced bog shooter if he gets himself going down the bog's longitudinal on his side or back and at the same time throws his gun to his attendant, generally an unshod "gossoon," who rarely fails to catch it. The position of being logged is very unpleasant, but if a man throws himself on his side or back there is strength enough in the peat to support his ally."—Forty-five Years of Sport."

Paine's Celery Compound CURES RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism, which does its terrible work in the muscles, joints, and tissues, is caused by uric acid which gathers in the blood. To get rid of this poisonous acid which produces the irritations, pains, agonies, inflammations, and swellings peculiar to rheumatism, Paine's Celery Compound should be used without delay. No other medicine gives such prompt, cheering, and happy results. It is the only medicine that prevents a return of the dreaded disease. Paine's Celery Compound braces the nerves, the blood is quickly cleared of all impurities, appetite and muscle are built up, and the digestive organs perfectly toned. Do not treat with indifference the slightest rheumatic symptoms; the early use of Paine's Celery Compound will save you weeks and months of suffering. Mr. S. D. Conway, of Lincoln, Neb., was permanently cured by Paine's Celery Compound after repeated failures with other medicines and physicians; he writes:

"I am 64 years of age, and have lived in St. Louis 27 years, and all this time with the exception of three years, I have served in the Engineers' Department as Inspector. Last winter I contracted rheumatism and was laid up for a month, and doctors, but all failed until I struck Paine's Celery Compound, which has made a permanent cure in my case. I have recommended it to many, and they have used it with the same result."

Headache.

The ordinary feminine headache will be greatly relieved and in many cases entirely cured by removing the waist of one's dress, knotting the hair high up on the head out of the way and, while leaning over the basin, placing a sponge soaked in water as hot as it can be borne on the back of the neck. Repeat this many times, also sopping the sponge behind the ears, and the strained muscles and nerves that have caused so much misery will be felt to relax and smooth themselves out deliciously and very frequently the pain promptly vanishes in consequence.

A Common Color.

The elder Dumas once was wearing the ribbon of a certain order, having recently been made a commandant, and an envious friend remarked upon it. "My dear fellow," he said, "just cochin is a wretched color! One would think it was your woolen vest that was showing!"

"Oh, no, my dear d'E——," replied Dumas with a smile. "You're mistaken. It's not a bad color; it is exactly the shade of the sour grapes in the fable."

Wig Wearing Very Old.

The ancient Egyptians all wore wigs, and the early Christians from A. D. 427 to A. D. 917 considered a false head covering a badge of distinction. This, too, in direct opposition to Tertullian, who in vain declared them devices and inventions of the devil, and Clement of Alexandria, who warned his hearers that when the sacred hands of the clergy were laid on their heads the blessing would not penetrate through the false hair.

Fireside Reflections.

It has been estimated that there are only 50,000 really handsome men in the United States. Every man wonders where the other 49,000 are.

Being a bachelor is a good deal like playing solitaire. You can always cheat yourself into the belief that you're having a good time.

Why does it always seem to rain harder on a Sunday just before church time than on a Saturday just before matinee time?

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefitted. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia, and Grip. Guaranteed by C J Haydon, druggist. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

Borax in the House.

Borax water is a good thing to have about the washstand. It is easily made. Pour a pint of boiling water over six tablespoonfuls of powdered or crystallized borax and let it get cold, then strain and bottle. The water will take just about this amount of borax, this being a saturated solution. Keep well corked so no dirt can enter. When washing in hard water add a spoonful of this solution, and the water will be smooth and pleasant, besides helping the little sores or inflamed places which are so apt to come on the hands when doing housework. Pour some on your toothbrush and it will help whiten the teeth. If the teeth are bad or the mouth sore or "bad tasting," a teaspoonful of borax well diluted with twice as much water will [illegible] and sweeten the mouth
